Build Your Stack Overflow Community

Tips, insights, and best practices for building a thriving community on your SOE site.

Document generated 12/06/2024

PDF VERSION
Tags | Community | Engagement |

Applies to: Free   Basic   Business   Enterprise

This documentation is for Stack Overflow for Teams Enterprise. Free, Basic, and Business users can access their documentation here. Find your plan.

Overview

Creating excitement, increasing engagement, and building a thriving community should be the main goal of Stack Overflow Enterprise (SOE) community managers and moderators, especially when launching a new site. To this end, we've created three guides filled with tips, insights, and best practices to help you make your SOE site a vibrant resource for your users.

NOTE: We use the generic word "community" in this article, not to be confused with Stack Overflow's Communities feature.

Kickstart Planning and Community Best Practices

This guide gives community managers the ins and outs of building vibrant technical communities in SOE. It covers key steps in launching a new SOE site, how to prepare for the kickstart period, areas to monitor in the early stages of your community, and community best practices.

Getting Started: Kickstart Planning and Community Best Practices

Guide for Community Managers and Moderators

This guide provides information on key tasks required for basic moderation, how to use moderator tools, and tips on workflows and advanced features.

Getting Started: A Guide for Community Managers and Moderators

Building your Community Team

This guide offers advice on recruiting for the roles of the administrative team implementing a SOE community for an organization. It provides information on the key roles of your team, their responsibilities, and some skills to look for when recruiting.

Getting Started: Building Your Community Team

If you need further support or have questions, contact your site administrator.